The building stands
and ivy covers up
its brick-laid walls.

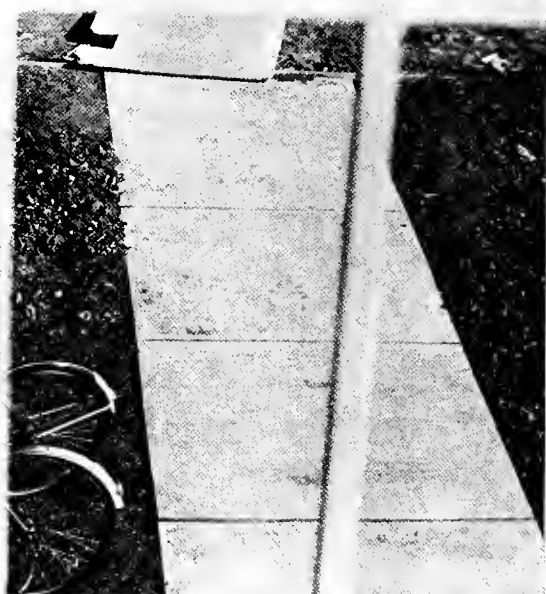

It stands as shiny leaves
do glisten in the sun awhile and then reach up for more.

The building doesn't grow —
the ivy does.

The building makes it possible.

The buildings stand and we come and the halls echo with the sound of our steps and the ring of our laughter. Running steps to beat a bell, slow steps to think or talk. Laughter at each other, at a letter, or at our own foolishness.

We visit around their tables and burn their lights late. We use their telephones and hold hands at their doors. And the buildings sound of the clink of dinner-ware and the groan of fatigue and the chatter of happy voices.

We dig deep into their books and try to understand the world we live in and what we can do for that world. And sometimes we wish we could forget about war and divorce and poverty but they lift ugly heads and demand answers.

In them we ask questions. We become dissatisfied. We yearn to know God better. We listen to men who know God, we share with friends, we pray in the quietness of our own souls. We find enough to know we must go still deeper.

Martha Oswald, Secretary to the President and the Director of Admissions; Danna Harst, Secretary to the Director of Nursing Education; Danna Saltzman, Secretary to the Personnel Deans; Not pictured — Erna Saltzman, Secretary to the Dean and Registrar.

They

Education is continuous growth. Some of it takes place in schools, but formal education is only the base upon which one becomes a learner. Education which is Christian constrains individuals to make decisions which are wise in the light of Christian values.

They
They

They are there — in back of it all — organizing, planning, considering, deciding.

They are concerned for us — they want us to grow.

They believe in education; they believe in Hesston. They want to help us become; they want us to find ourselves. So they work for us — they work to bring us life. They help us to work; they help us to face ourselves and the world.

We see them — the president in front of chapel, the business manager when we write our checks, the deans when we have a problem. Our contact with them changes us.

develop understanding of God

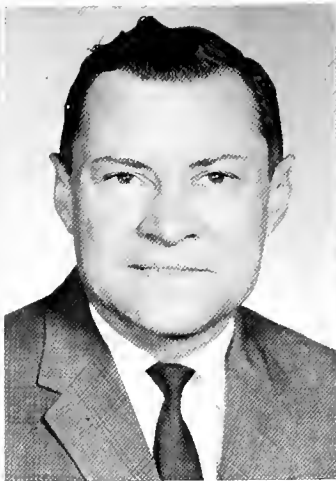

First there is New T. and then Old T., and they are classes along with Comm. and Chem. and Psych., and we learn about life in them.

We study Matthew and Mark and Romans and Revelation, and we spend hours collecting information on Genesis, Exodus, history, poetry, and people. We study living people who needed God.

And we work and listen to lectures, and we understand more what God has done and is doing and can do. And we are changed.

We listen and learn

We talk and write and learn to think. We have conflicting ideas and arguments. We develop concepts and attitudes.

We look at men's writings and sift through their philosophies — gathering material to build our own. And all that we read is reflected in what we think.

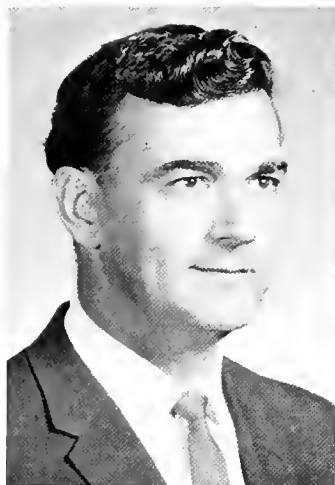

Early morning classes, thick tongues, stubborn tongues — problems. But Mr. Koppenhaver's enthusiasm is contagious, and we learn to be enthusiastic too.

And so we learn our conjugations and vocabs and declensions and pronunciations.

ourselves and art

Lectures, hours of listening, frustrations, and enjoyments — and we learn about music.

We learn to recognize, to identify with, to appreciate and to make music — and music becomes an outlet, and it fills our empty souls.

We wander around sketching — thinking we can't and learning that we can. We transfer our ideas, our feelings to paper or to clay — we create. Sometimes it's poor but we learn and we become free.

And to the artist comes a satisfaction that he gives something of himself to others with his art.

We discover man

We learn to know

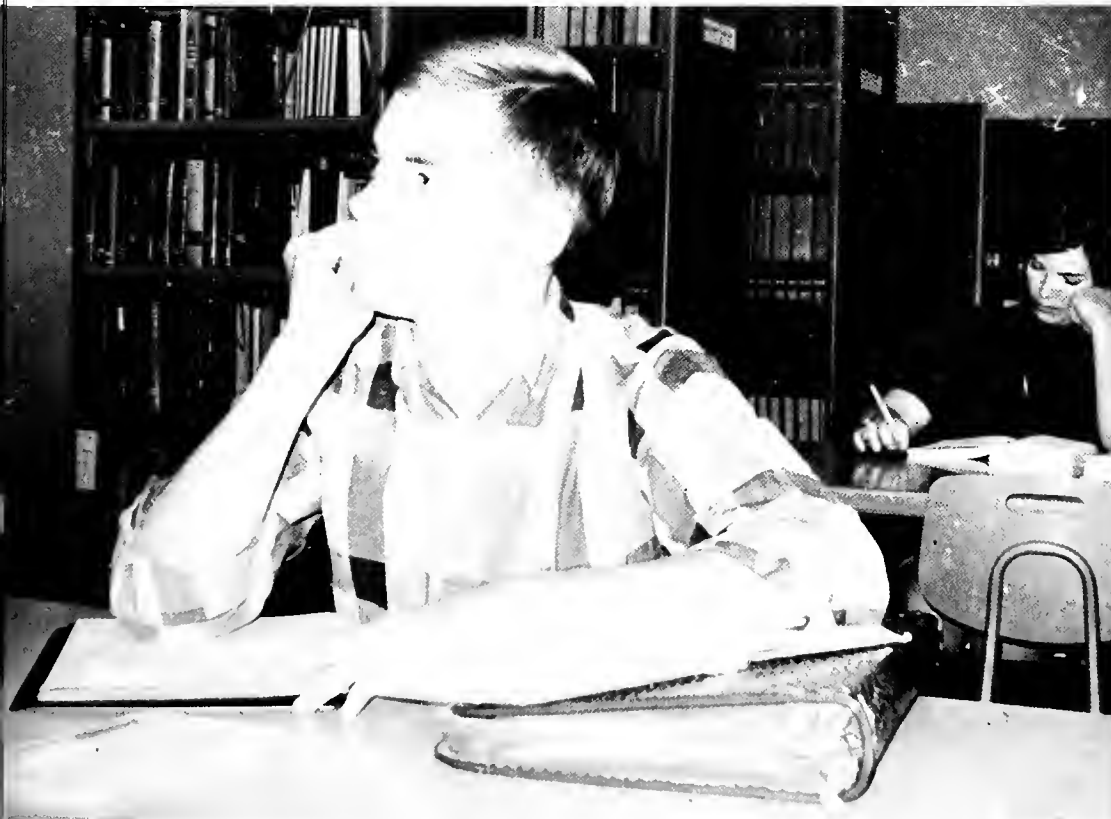

In psych. and soc. and history we study man — how he is and how he acts and why.

We study man in ancient Greece and we study man today. We wonder why he fought these ancient wars and why the Vietnamese war is being fought, and we wonder why we fight within ourselves.

We learn about men — then we look at our classmates, our roommates, our friends; and we understand how they are. And we begin to understand ourselves.

And to teach others
And to develop

We discuss philosophies of education — we criticize, we idealize. Then we observe kindergarten. We see children who want to learn — we see ourselves. We wonder what's wrong with education and we wonder what kind of teachers we'll be.

We practice soccer and volleyball and basketball and golf and tennis — even guns and hunting or casting and fishing.

We learn the rules of play and the basic skills, and we exercise and compete.

And we learn what recreation can do for us.

They lead in

We struggle with derivatives in calc., equations in chem., and microscopes in biology. We measure and heat, splatter and weigh. We finally decide that the bromine content in CuBr and CuBr_2 confirms the law of definite proportions. We cut up crickets and meal worms and frogs and mice, and we look for parasites, and we see what we've been studying.

We study and learn and experiment and conclude. We grasp basic truths and significant details. And in the end we've come to understand our world better.

And instill in us a desire to

We learn to balance equations and to identify bones and to cut up frogs. And we learn names of diseases and medical terms. We attend nurses conventions, and we see what we will be.

We are the first and we get new maroon-striped caps and uniforms, and we work in the hospital at Halstead for labs. And we are aware of the need and we want to be nurses.

And to into

We practice dictation, timed writings, machines.
We become frustrated; we become businessmen and women.

And we cook. We try new recipes; old recipes — some good, some bad. And we learn, and we become intelligent consumers.

We design, sew, fit, rip and hem — and in the end we have a useful piece of art.

And we create beauty with our hands in wood turning and metalwork and crafts.

And we learn practical skills and express ourselves through them.

delve the world of work

So we grow
because They show us life

They show us life; they help us in every area of our life; and they help us integrate ourselves into a whole person, and they help us develop our deficient areas.

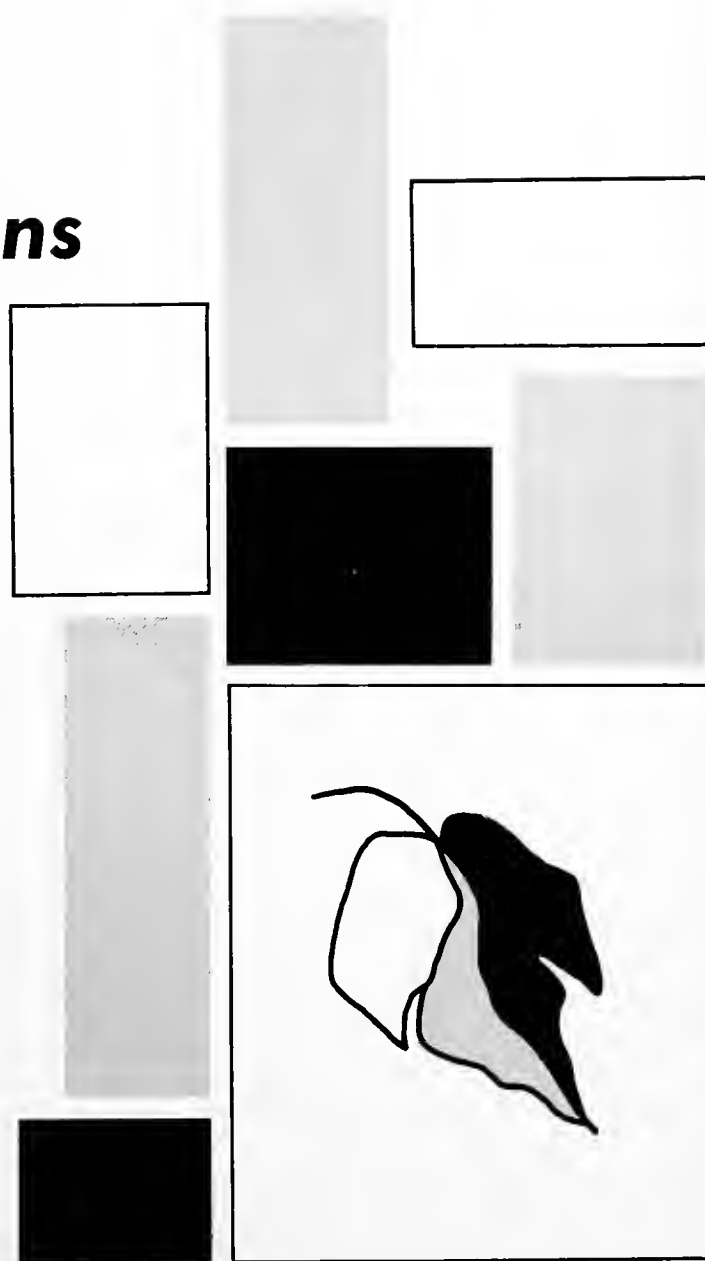

With their help we came to understand God; we learn to express ourselves; we learn about man and us, and we prepare for the future.

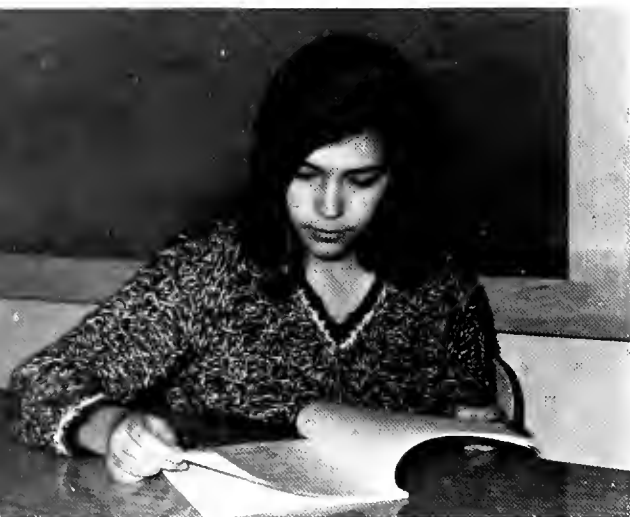

We have changed because of them and what they teach us. We are more ready to live.

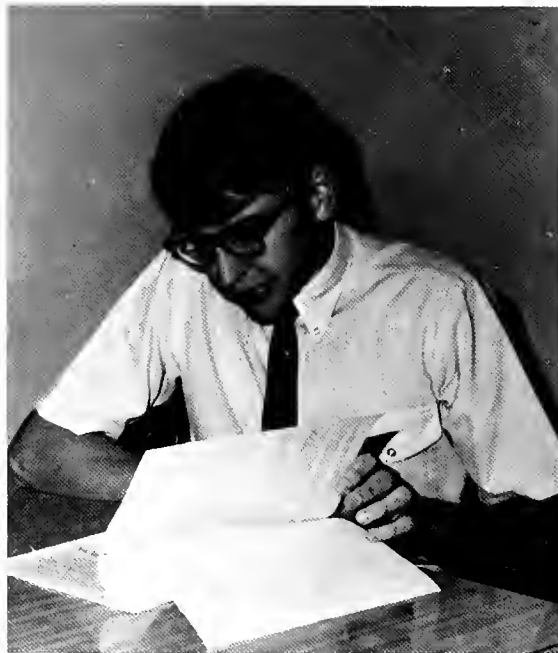

Organizations

SECRETARY: Kathy Cender.

PRESIDENT: Ken Gingrich.

We are the church on campus

COMMISSIONERS: Jae Landis, Teams; Jean Gerig, Programs; Ruthanne Janzen, Small Groups; Clair Jaberg, Institutional Service; Al Leinbach, Publicity.

VICE-PRESIDENT: Dan Lind.

TREASURER: Ed Trayer.

STANDING Gospel Team: John Oyer, Lenore Roth, Fred Kauffman, Marv Schmucker, Charlene Kauffman, Clair Frank.

Daring to discover life.

Our "Y" motto, "Dare to Discover Life," challenges us to find our faith.

We worship and we hear God speak; we share Him in drama, in song, and in service.

We break away from routine campus activities. We listen to others' problems, concerns, and boastings. We gain confidence to relate to the spiritual need of our brother next to us in the cafe, in the jail, or at Youthville.

We debate spiritual issues and questions. And we discuss contemporary problems of the church.

We become aware of our responsibilities as Christians.

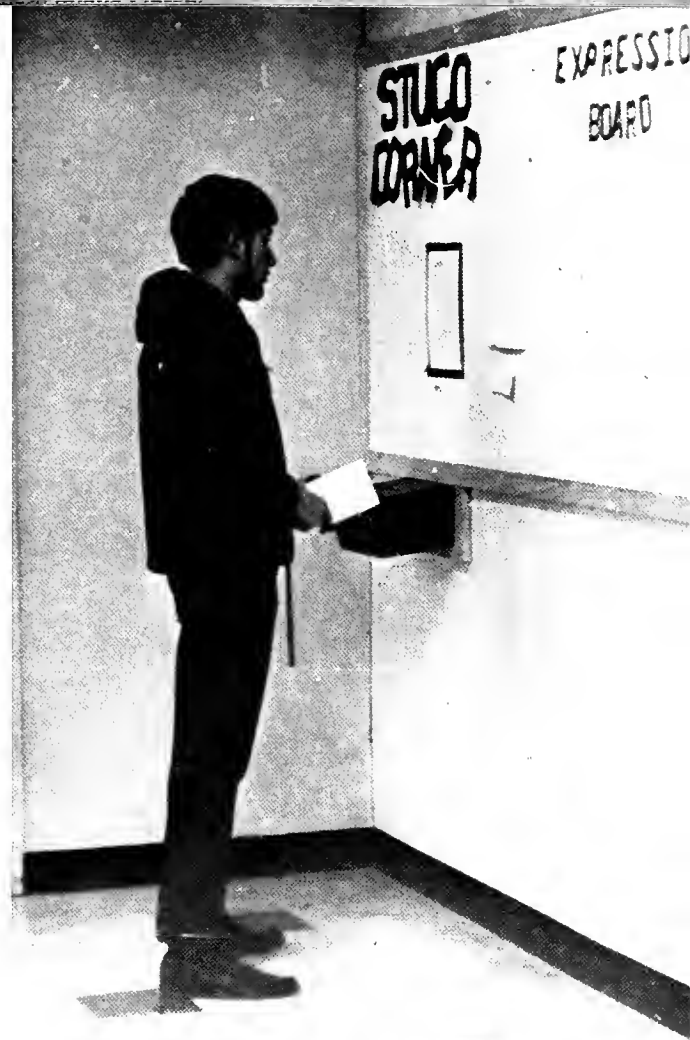

We act together to improve Hesston

Executive Committee: Dan Kauffman, President; Roy Gerig, Vice-President; Millie Guengerich, Secretary; Paul Lyndaker, Treasurer.

Stuco promotes our social, cultural, and athletic life on campus.

We become acquainted and have fun together during Freshman Week, Flire Week, socials, and gym nights.

We use our talents in talent shows, music recitals, and combos. We watch films and shoot pool.

Cheerleaders, pep rallies, snake dances, and defensive player awards excite our enthusiasm for winning.

Stuco is us in action.

EDITORS: Larry Danielson, Myra Vagt.

And to stimulate and record these improvements.

SPORTS EDITOR: Thea Widmer.

FEATURE EDITOR: Barbara Stane.

Decisions, opinions, controversies. Photographs, articles, proofreading, printing, editing. Print, heads, columns, pages. Printing, criticisms, and compliments.

We read about LMs, chapel speakers, and films; about Y activities, Stuco socials, dorm life, and the nursing program.

We get opinions in editorials and literary reviews, on world situations, and from International students. And we think.

We express ourselves in poetry, creative writing, and cartoons. And we grow because we write and because we read and because we think.

Columnists: Shirlene Brenneman, Dialog; Betsy Beyler, Book Review; Maxine Mast, Copy Editor; Delbert Friesen, Current Events.

Managers: Kendal Smucker, Advertising; Wayne Beachy, Business; Chris Yoder, Managing Editor.

NEWS EDITOR: Weldon Schlaneger

EDITORS: Florence Rodgers, Becky Roth, Margaret Miller.

We seek to reproduce Hesston and its meaning

BUSINESS MANAGER: Norman Yader.

COPY EDITORS: Marcia Mann, Rachel Horst, Mike Cramer.

We, the LARK staff, observe Hesston as a whole: its characters and its classes, its buildings and its purpose.

We plan and organize; we search for a theme. We experiment with layouts: which pictures? where? We think; we write; we rewrite; and we create captions and copy.

December 1; January 28; March 8 — deadlines, deadlines, deadlines. And then May 15 — the finished product!

It expresses our year at Hesston: our studies, our impressions, our insights, and our growth.

College Choir, Chamber Choir, Choral Society. We register, and audition, and wait for the lists to be posted.

We sing 'til we're hoarse: quarter notes, half rests, dotted sixteenths; scales, octaves, chords, harmony.

We sing for Thanksgiving, for worship hours, for Christmas, for Easter, and for Commencement. We sing on campus, in town, and out of state. We sing music for meditation, for reflection, for praise, and for celebration.

And music becomes an expression of our inmost being.

We Kick Into The Goal

In the fall we kick, dribble, tackle, head.
We run long. Play hard. Protect our net. Get tired. Score.
We win. Lose.

We win recognition. Conference. Goshen. National JUCO
Finals. We build our bodies. Strengthen our discipline.

We cheer. Get excited. Yell. Blow whistles. We encourage our team. We have fun.

Tall men. Short men. Opponents — shorter, mostly taller. Degeneration. Despair. Defeat. Vigor, Vitality. Victory.

We practice layups. Rebounds. Free throws. The fast break.

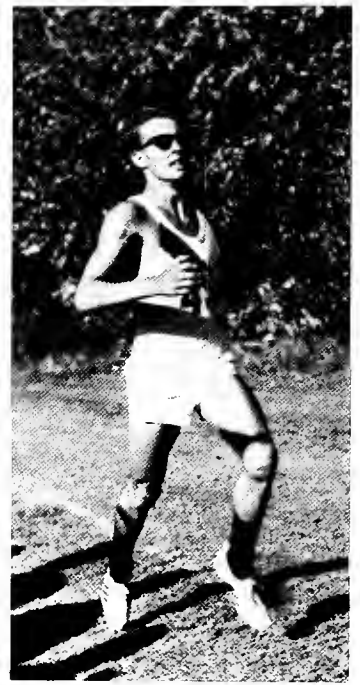

"Dribble, Dribble, Dribble. Poss. Dribble. Steal. Dribble. Pass. Pass. Shoot! Yeah!"

We root for our team. Stay loyal. Face Superior adds. We protest calls . . . quietly, loudly. We support.

or swing the racket

Ball meets club. Baseball. Tennis. Golf.
The ball sails far, fast, true.

The wind is cold. Our muscles stiff. The practice long. The game hot. The action fast. The season short.

The goals are rough. The hole, line, fence. Distant. Demanding. Compelling.

Cheerleaders: Ruth Beachy, Joe Landis, Linda Sauder, Dalares Helmuth. Not pictured — Effie Esh.

All with the spirit to win.

They are the maroon and white. They cheer for our team. They jump, clap, stamp, yell, make noise. They have determination, dedication, spirit, loyalty. They organize spectators, control them. Support sportsmanship.

School is done for the day. Varsity is practicing. Intramurals take over. Table tennis, badminton, volleyball, basketball, soccer. They fight for the game — hard, rough, determined. They ref differently. Play fast. The action is heated. The fun well-shared.

The building stands
and ivy covers up
an added inch or two.

It stands as shiny leaves
cling fastened sure on something firm and then climb higher still.

The building's still the same —
the ivy's grown.

The building's made it possible.
